There is nothing in this communication that can influence your statutory rights. The Weee Directive on Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) aims to charge the producers the collection, treatment and recovery of electrical equipment. The directive also provides that equipment vendors such as high-street shops and internet retailers must allow consumers to free their waste equipment for free. The goods are marked with the cross-wheel garbage symbol to demonstrate that they were produced after 13 August 2005 and must be disposed of separately from normal household waste so as to be recycled. The distributors of new electrical and electronic equipment (EEE) have a role to play in reducing the quantity of WEEE that go to landfills. Under this Directive, flannels are required to offer its customers the free withdrawal of their WEEE on a similar basis when buying a new electrical or electronic product from flannels. For example, if a customer built a new battery / stopwatch / pedometer from flannels, flannels would accept their old battery / stopwatch / pedometer and would prevent it from entering a confidentially smelting landfill site. Customers must return their Raee articles to Flannels within 28 days of buying their new article. The conditions and terms are subject to English law. The Tribunals of England and Wales have exclusive of claims or disputes (contractual or non-contractual) arising in connection with such terms and conditions, including orders for goods.
