How to clean up internal storage android

Android as an operating system has become quite effective in recent years. Google has focused a lot on its file management system and the apps have obtained much cleaner. The engine that guides ads on your Android device has become much faster and more efficient. But this has come to the cost of storage space, your operating system files have become larger, the apps have become more heavy and the games have been obtained more intensive resources. With all this in mind, it is not surprising that your Android device can quickly fill in despite its large storage capacity. While you can quickly identify which photographs, videos, files, documents, apps and games consume the real estate sector, some files may be put under the category "Other" category from the system. The system puts into practice any unidentified storage file within the scope of "Other" in the equity memory analyzer of the Android device device. If you have searched for a solution to this problem, then you landed in the Right place. We compiled this complete guide that will cover all the reasons for filling your storage and provide most if not all the solutions that will be applicable to your device. Start. What is in "Attractions Categories in the list of use of your device's storage Here what is filling the storage marked as "Other" on your device. The private app data
