Parents and caregivers should use the age ratings below as a general guideline, taking the abilities, temperament and interests of their children into account. Ages 9+ Can complete without assistance. Age 8 Can complete with minimal assistance after directions are given. Age 7 Introduction to cursive writing concepts – can complete with adult assistance. Introduction Just like printing, cursive writing is typically not presented in alphabetical order. I've chosen to present the letters in groups that are formed in a similar manner (you'll find this is what most schools do). The worksheets build on one another so you'll want to begin with the letter a and add letters in the order listed. It is important to build when it comes to handwriting as the key difference between cursive writing and printing is that the letters flow together (connect). Present lower case letters first – you can quickly begin forming words so that cursive handwriting can be incorporated with other lessons such as spelling and social studies. Note: Of course, the first thing every child I've ever met has wanted to learn to write is their name – and I always approach learning as something fun, so by all means encourage them to do this. The worksheets on this page won't help you, but pop over to our customizable cursive tracer pages to type in your child's name (or anything else that tickles their fancy). Also, check out the Cursive Alphabet Coloring Pages for some fun cursive practice pages to compliment these worksheets. I have to admit - my kids are not thrilled with having to learn ANOTHER form of writing. They already dislike print writing enough. But there are far too many benefits to cursive for me to pass up teaching them. Plus, they can already write - the switch to cursive is seriously simple. So I figured some seriously simple worksheets were in order. Watch How We Use the 2nd Grade Cursive Writing Worksheets How to Use the 2nd Grade Cursive Writing Worksheets If you have a 2nd grader (or even a 1st or 3rd grader) these cursive writing worksheets are perfect. They're designed for kids who don't necessarily already know how to write in cursive but probably already have experience with print writing. The trick to teaching kids cursive is to have ample practice working on the connections between letters - and that's exactly what these worksheets are designed to do! There is one page per letter. Each page starts with the letter at the top left big enough to finger trace. Then there is a place to trace (with a pen, pencil, marker, etc) the letter a few times. And underneath that is a place to practice the letter without tracing. These pages are left-handed friendly! Every word to copy is placed above the space to write it so their hand is not blocking their view. Next, there are two words with pictures and a place to trade the word and a place to write the word. Finally, there is a place at the bottom to copy a phrase that uses the featured letter multiple times. How to Learn Cursive Writing For kids who are already familiar with print writing, these pages are the perfect transition to cursive. Most cursive letters are very similar to their print counterparts. If you can demonstrate for your kids how to connect letters, then you can use these worksheets for practice. Need more practice with each individual letter? Don't miss my Crazy Cursive Alphabet resource which provides plenty of practice for each letter. How to Practice Cursive Writing Cursive writing, like print writing, requires a bit of practice to perfect. (or at least to make legible). The trick to practicing cursive (versus print) is working on the connections between letters. For kids that already know how to print their letters, the only real difference is knowing how to connect them. Introduction: Students are often excited about the opportunity to learn cursive writing! To master their letter formation, they will need lots of modeling and opportunities to practice their writing. This lesson guides you through how to model writing the lowercase and uppercase "a" and how to provide students with three different opportunities for independent practice. The lesson gives consideration to visual, auditory, and kinesthetic learning styles. Materials: Preparation: The teacher will need lined chart paper to write on. Position the chart paper where all students can easily see it. Each student needs either a mini-whiteboard and marker or alternatively, a clipboard or other hard surface, paper, and pencil. If available, each student needs a juggling scarf. If scarves are not available, this step in the lesson can be modified. Print a copy of the lowercase and uppercase "a" worksheets for each student. Practice- Learn to write days of the week and months of the year- Includes a blank practice page and an alphabet reference chart FOCUSED PRACTICE: The Beginning Cursive Workbook helps children to learn and master cursive writing effectively through structured and well-laid out exercises. The 32-page handwriting workbook helps enhance their writing. Using chart paper, model how to write the letter "a." It is helpful to provide students with a verbal pathway as you write: Around, down, swing up. Model the formation of the letter "a" several times, using the verbal pathway each time. Model for students how to form the letter "a" in the air using a juggling scarf. If you do not have scarves, students can use their index finger to make the letter "a" in the air. Have them chime in with the verbal pathway as they practice forming the letter several times. Ask students to practice writing the letter "a" on their whiteboards or paper. Have them make the letter several times. Remind them to use the verbal pathway. Independent Practice: Provide each student with the lowercase "a" worksheet. Circulate around the room, supporting as necessary, as they complete the worksheets. Students who experience difficulty may need to see the formation modeled again and/or be reminded of the verbal pathway to guide their writing. Ask students to share the names and occupations they thought of that begin with the letter "a," which will help out any classmates who need ideas. Follow-Up: Use this same lesson structure to introduce the uppercase "A." Be certain to point out that the lowercase "a" is a short letter and the uppercase "A" is a tall letter. The printable poster is very helpful for showing students the difference in height between the two letters. Extensions: Students can use other modalities to practice forming their letters. Other ideas include: Salt trays Chalkboards Slime Sand Paint Use the same lesson structure to introduce more cursive letters.
